

Become a purple cake day ambassador

Show the world what a difference you can make

Anyone can be a Purple Cake Day® Ambassador! Being an Ambassador means you're passionate about making a difference in the lives of children, in your own community and globally. Become an ambassador and organise awareness and/or fundraising activities in your school, community or workplace and inspire others through your leadership. If you or someone you know goes that extra purple mile, let us know - we'd love to acknowledge this effort. Email your name and details to: celebrate@purplecakeday.org

Skylar McClelland is a child ambassador for Purple Cake Day. She lives in Wellington, NZ. Skylar goes to Samuel Marsden School and loves netball, hip-hop, singing, playing the clarinet, fishing and going to Guides.

Skylar found out about Purple Cake Day 2012 and asked her teacher if she could make a presentation to her class to encourage them to join the day of celebration, education and action. They said YES! and the purple fever spread. All the classes in their year group got on board and they decorated their school hats, made flags of hope, baked and sold cupcakes and ran other fundraising events. Skylar's initiative and leadership were simply incredible. In 2013 the whole school joined the celebrations!

"I like knowing I have formed a connection with children around the world because our lives have touched each other through Purple Cake Day. This means there are more children around the world who will help each other. We will have friends in other countries and learn more about their cultures and there will be peace because we understand each other and we care. I believe this is the great thing about supporting Purple Cake Day".
